Simply Good News Why The

The good news is that we are invited to be a part of that today, in the here and now, through faith in Jesus. In particular, Wright lays out four criteria for what constitutes good news: good news is (1) the announcement of an event, (2) in the context of a story or history, (3) that reveals a new future, and (4) that remakes the present.

Christianity is, simply, good news. It is the news that something has happened as a result of which the world is a different place. That is what the apostle Paul—Paul the royal commissioner—was announcing. To many people then, and to many today, this was and is either nonsense or offensive or both.
